Robert Allerton filled his Formal Gardens with pieces of sculpture he collected during his travels around the world. Each has a story and history behind it.

Match the name of the sculpture with its description:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Sculpture</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Adam</td>
<td>This was the last sculpture added to the Allerton Estate.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Three Graces</td>
<td>Robert Allerton’s butler posed for this sculpture.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Girl with a Scarf</td>
<td>Statues of this type are often used as support for a building or structure.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Primitive Men</td>
<td>Created by the same artist that made The Thinker.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sphinxes</td>
<td>It was Robert who decided to add the garland and ‘cup of plenty’ to these identical statues.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Terminal Busts</td>
<td>Personify Beauty, Charm &amp; Grace.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sea Maidens</td>
<td>These guardian statues pose a riddle to approaching visitors.</td>
</tr>

PRAIRIE

Take some time to sketch your observations of the prairie at Allerton:
The Fu Dog is a highly stylized animal with slightly different characteristics including:

Fringed manes
Long hairy ears
Ornamental eyebrows
Large eyes
Curved horns
Ferocious mouths
Large curving tails

Allerton’s variations show some similarities to dragons. Each one is slightly different!
Which one is your favorite?!
Choose one of the Fu Dogs in the Fu Dog Garden to sketch. Add as many details as you can to your drawing!
